MAREIAGE On the 28th instant, at the Cathedral, Hongkong, by the Rev. Wm. Jennings, Colonial Chaplain, Mal. and Japan, to Cectata, elder daughter of John Gall deceased, late manager of the Bank of Bombay, Bombay,

At Keeling, on the 22nd Sept., UHARLES BURGESS. master of the British barque Albyn's Isle.

Hongkong, September 29th, 1889 Ir is rather difficult to understand, by the been sought and given, and Lord GRANVILLE. is now, we presume, trying to bring about an understanding and agreement between instant, a Paris telegram by the Havas Agency stated that the Chinese Ambassador Router's telegram dated the 26th inst. The Temps is this—that one refers to the Protoctorate, the other speaks of downright annexation. According to the Paris journal just quoted the Chinese Government propose-China should take possession of the remainder of Tonquin. It may be true that people, and that they must, in the natural way of disposing of them. It is, however, in accord with the policy developed of late by the Peking Government, of which the forthe Dai In Kun is the latest example. That the delta of Songkoi is readily understand. while a great part of Annam proper is exceedingly poor country. Moreover the mines about which so much has been said, but concerning which so little is apparently known, lie in the territory which China proposes to add to her own vast empire. It may puzzle some persons to divine for what reasons the Peking Government should so stubbornly contend against the establish. ment of a French Protectorate right up to the horders of Yunnan. Until this telegram arrived, we had always believed that Chi ness opposition aross simply from a dread of French-or indeed any foreign-influence on their immediate frontier; but it would now appear that the mandarins have other objects | whether a committee meeting was held upon and productive a country as Tonquin. They doubtless view it as a granary from that lay outside the boundaries of China proper. As proof of this it is only necessary to point to Chinese action in Kores, where they are quite ready to promote mining of the 24th inst, the Chinese adhere tenaciously to it. The question is now appadifficulty solved,

Cosmopolitan dock to-day.

The verdict in the case of Logan, at Conton is, as will be seen by the telegram at the end of our report, one of manslaughter. We understand from the Registrar that inderpage of great interest to lovers of the noble game the Cricket Ground will be open for play from this afternoon.

With the exception of the charge of libel there were no cases of interest at the Police Court yesterday. A number of men were fined for being at large during the night without offences was disposed of.

under the patronage of His Excellency Major. General Sargent, C. B., and the Colonel and Officers of the Buffs. The programme will be found on our front page.

The British barque Albyn's Isle arrived here on Thursday from Keelung in charge of the chief death on Saturday, the 22nd inst., at Keelang. Capt. Bargess had been trading to Hongkong label. Sold wholesale by the for some years and had made a large circle of Proprietors, Worcester; and friends by whom he was much respected.

The Hongkoug Volunteers will now have t get to work again with their drilling, for the drill season having set in notices have been sent round to the men notifying the arrange. ments mude. Drills or parades will be held on all but one day next week, and a battery is to be regularly appointed and put into division, so that there will soon be one properly appointed lutely inevitable from a dress rehearsal and the equired strength of another. The inquiry into the cause of death of Ah Po Chee was continued at the Magistracy by M H. E. Wodehouse, Coroner, and a jury composed Schroter. Wong Kee, a foreman at Hung Ham Dock, was called, and from his evidence it apneared that the deceased, with twenty-nine-other coolies, was at work at a windlass taking a boiler out of the steamer Yotsai. The boiler had been raised out of the vessel and was being lowered to the ground when the twelve o'clock tiffle bell rang and the men immediately left hold of the windless and rushed off. The consequence was that the boiler fell to the ground, rapidly unwinding the windless, and one of the handles struck de- all play-going bearts! The appliance that was not at all see why we should not go straight to NOTICE.—To svoid delay in the execution of ceased. Deceased was taken to the hospital, but died on the way. The witness was also struck and showed a mark on his site; he said that had killed. Inspector Cameron said that none of the Europeans at the dock saw the accident, and the other coolies simply made the same statement as the last witness had given. He explained the construction of the windless, and stated that the Europeans at the dock had informed him that in lowering heavy weights backstop ought to be used, so as to stop the windless in a moment if necessary, and strict orders to that effect were in force,—The foreman being recalled said that sometimes the backstop was used and sometimes not.—The Coroner said he thought some one from the dock ought to be in attendance to state what were the orders in COLM JONES, of H.B.M.'s Supreme Court for China | force. Accidents were of constant occurrence at the docks. There appeared to be carelessness on some one's part, and if the foreman received orders as to the use of the backstop and neglected them, it seemed to him the foreman ought to e held responsible.—Inspector Cameron said that if there had their a man at the backstop and he had ran away whon the bell rang as the others did the accident would have occurred just the same.—The Coroner said the man would be placed there not to run away. He adjourned the inquiry until Monday at 2.30 for the attendance of the superintendent of the Dock.

The Inspector-General and his staff have done their proper work efficiently enough; but I am strongly of opinion that serious political mischief must come some day out of this random congregation of various important executive bureaux under one irresponsible head, towards which the Inspectorate-General has for some time past been drifting. It may be very nice for the chief in charge of such an olla-podrida system to find bimself the recipient of vest annual emoluments, and at the same time to have the command of a gigantic expenditure, together with a patronage fit for an Emperor. But the interest of the public is the main consideration, and this can only be effectively protected, by sagregating each department under a separate head, responsible to the cabinet or the crown alone.

FROM OUR BEPORTER. 27th September. On Thursday morning an assident occurred on the river as the steamer Kinking was leaving. man Dias in connection with the above case. His Lordship said It is as well that I should dispose now of the application made to me on Tuesday by Mr. Francis. It appears that the application is prematurely and irregularly made there being at that time no charge against the person with respect to whom the application was made. I noticed a lot of blood on the face and a pool of blood on the ground where the body was lying. I saw nothing to indicate the cause of death. The boy was apparently quite dead at that time. After seeing this I went back along the street to Mr. Logan's house. I went in, and going upstains I saw Mr. Johnson. Mr. Logan was downstairs when I first went in and shortly afterwards he came upsteirs. I remember how he was dressed; he had white pants and a singlet on. Mr. Johnson was dressed in a dark suit; I noticed two revolvers on the table and a sword. The revolvers produced are like these I saw-one with a white handle and the other is a bull-dog revolver. I cannot say whether they are the same. I saw some cartridges on the table also like those in court. Mr. Ewer took the revolvers, cartridges on t sword away. We got into the prisoner's house from the front-myself, Mr. Laut, and Mr. Ewer. The door was shut when we got to it. There was a wooden door and a wire door. It was about eight or shortly after that I entered the prisoner's bouse. I don't remamber the time he was arrested, but in the interval I had been across to the British Consulate on Shameen and reported the matter. When Mr. Laut and Mr. Ewer and myself were admitted to the prisoner's house at half past eight that morning. I saw some stones or half bricks. I saw four or five, and they wore scattered around. I saw no marks of anything broken or damaged in or about the prisoner's house. I do not remember whether there is a faulight over his house door. I had

I know the prisoner's house, it is in the main street, the first street next the river running parallel to it. I live on the river frontage, and we turned east into the main street to go to the prisoner's house. I went to Mr Matsen's house, where I saw Mr. Matsen and Mr. Ström, a number of Chinese, and a Chinese woman who had a wound through her left shoulder. After leaving Mr. Matsen's house we went along the street over the bridge, andnear the closs-street we saw a great growd of Chinese extending to the cross-street. On turning the corner towards the north I gaw the body of a Chinese boy lying in the road, it was covered with blood, and apparently quite cead I saw nothing else at that time and we all went back to Mr. Logan's house. We rang the bell and were admitted by the boy. I saw Mr. Johnson upstairs, and the prisoner came up directly after. I asked him what had been the trouble outside, or words to that effect.
